

5. My Village

My village is a beautiful and peaceful place. Its name is Bhuwakhedi. It is surrounded by green fields, trees, and fresh air. Most of the people in my village are farmers. They grow wheat, mustard, and other crops. There is a government school, a temple, a playground, and a small market. The roads are clean, and people help each other. Children play together in the evening, and old people sit under the trees and talk. During festivals, everyone celebrates with great joy. I love the simple life of my village. It is free from noise and pollution. I am proud of my village because it is clean, beautiful, and full of kind people.

6. A Visit to a Zoo

Last Sunday, I visited a zoo with my parents. It was a wonderful experience. The zoo was clean and full of green trees. I saw many animals like lions, tigers, elephants, bears, monkeys, zebras, and deer. I also saw colorful birds and beautiful peacocks. The lion looked very strong, and the elephant was very large. The monkeys were jumping from one tree to another, and they made everyone laugh. We took many photos and enjoyed our visit. The zoo teaches us about different animals and the importance of protecting wildlife. I learned that we should love animals and never harm them. It was an enjoyable and memorable day for me.

7. Holi

Holi is one of the most popular festivals in India. It is known as the festival of colours. It is celebrated every year in the month of March. People wear old white clothes and play with different colours and water. Children enjoy using water balloons and water guns. Families prepare delicious sweets like gujiya and other special dishes. People visit their relatives and friends and wish them "Happy Holi." They forget their differences and celebrate together with happiness. Music and dancing make the festival more enjoyable. Holi teaches us the values of love, friendship, and unity. I always celebrate Holi with my family and friends. It is my favourite festival of the year.

8. A Village Fair

A village fair is a joyful event in rural areas. It is usually held after the harvest or during a festival. Many people from nearby villages come to enjoy the fair. There are many colourful shops selling toys, clothes, sweets, and household items. Children enjoy rides like swings and giant wheels. People also watch magic shows, puppet shows, and folk dances. Delicious food such as jalebi, kachori, and samosa is available at many stalls. Farmers buy useful tools for their fields. The fair becomes a place where people meet their relatives and friends. Everyone enjoys the cheerful atmosphere. A village fair brings happiness, entertainment, and unity to village life.
